

K-12 Residency Models

Produce It!

This model is an option for schools who wish to have a full theatrical production at their site.

The “Produce It!” residency gives schools an opportunity to experience many facets of theatrical production. These residencies are more time- and resource-intensive, and may be crafted to the specific needs of the school.

These programs can take place during the regular school day, as part of an extended day program, or a combination of both. The residency is crafted to a school’s specific needs.

Schools can elect to have either a traditional play or musical produced at their site. SteppingStone Theatre can assist schools in the selection of a script. Elements such as technical design, directing, choreography, music directing, and producing can all be included in the “Produce It!” residency, based on a schools resources, interest, and needs.

Our past school partners, such as NOVA Classical Academy and Friendly Hills Middle School, have used this type of residency to produce a range of shows from Shakespeare to Steppingstone Theatre-created works such as Stone Soup Feeds the World.
